Sheep have never been utilized in this area to the extent they should. Livestock should be balanced. One ewe per cow is considered ideal for an extensive sheep operation. Sheep owners who participate in the electronic record program have detailed records from this source, expense reported for feed, pasture, salt, veterinarian service, shearing, trucking, dip machinery, bedding, taxes, interest, replacement, building fences miscellaneous — comes to $21.20 per ewe (ewes averaged 1.4 lambs). Returns reported: lambs — 1.4 x 95No.; wool 6 no. and incentive; cull ewes and rams, manure total $38.20 per ewe. This is a labor return of $17.00 per ewe. The state average would probably be $15 — $16 expenses per ewe and a return of $25 — $28 per ewe. It's interesting to compare these costs with a Beef Cow-Calf operation. It's estimated that it cost $100 to keep a cow for ayear. With present cail prices, it's not difficult to see whether there is any profit. One thinking about sheep should set some goals: Here are four: (1) raise 1.5 lambs per ewe; (2) market at 100 no.; (3) 90 per cent grading "prime;" (4) average 8 no. wool per ewe. May and June are good months to purchase ewes. Performance tested rams is a must for progressive breeding program.

Insulation of the home is no longer considered a prohibitive expense by those building a home today. Tears and cracks in the paper moisture barrier are difficult to avoid. White installing batt or blanket type insulation, this will occur, so it is a good practice to cover studs from ceiling to floor with four mil plastic after the batt insulation is installed. This plastic layer forms a tight moisture barrier sealing all craks and tears in the paper, moisture barrier on the insulation batts

There's quite a lot of difference in galvanized roofing. Roofing sheets are usually 26, 28 or 29 guage. The lower figure indicates the thicker sheet. Galvanized roofing is made of zinc coated steel or iron. Zinc coatings are designated in ounces. The highest quality roofing has two ounces of zinc, the next grade one and one-half ounces, and lower grades one, or three-fourths of an ounce. This ounce designation is the amount of zinc coating per square foot. The amount of zinc should be stamped on each sheet. Tests indicate that galvanized roofing with two ounces of coating should last 10 to 15 years and sheets with one and one-half ounces should last 5 to 10 years before rust appears. Some steel sheets have a small amount of copper alloyed in the base metal. The copper increases the life of the base metal after the zinc coating has worn away. The cost of copper alloyed steel roofing is only 25 to 30 cents per square over the regular sheets. Galvanized roofing should be painted before any rust appears, you should use a metallic zinc paint to prevent further rusting.

The Robert E. Lee Soil and Water Conservation District is getting out an attractive report on its 1964 activities. Be sure to get one. There are soil conserving practices that many farmers can begin this spring that will save soil. Conservation farming makes both cents and sense.

Did you know that the first bourbon was distilled by a minister? This was in 1789 and the guilty gentleman was the Rev. Elijah Craig . . . That if it weren't for a dark pigment called melanin we would all be blue-eyed. It is this property which absorbs light and screens out the blue present in all eyes. Blue eyes appear blue for the simple reason that they lack this pigment . . . That there is such a thing as too much sleep? Sleepers breathe at a slowed rate which tends to store up carbon monoxide in the blood stream. Too much shuteye then becomes harmful . . .

Young Farmers COOP Officers Attend Meet

One of the real challenges confronting farmer cooperatives today is the development of plans to cope with the changing agriculture picture, declared Paul E. Mullinix, Director Community Services for Southern States Cooperative at a regional board meeting held in Farmville on Feb. 18.

These sessions — there are 48 of them being held in a five-state area — are held annually by the cooperative for local board and committee members, guest young farmers, agricultural workers and managers of the cooperative's retail outlets.

Guest young farmers attending the meeting were Dan Carson and Samuel Elder.

Attending the session from this area were W. Twyman Coleman, manager of Coleman's Feed and Seed Store, local Southern States retail outlet at Appomattox, Va. and board members Charlie S. Rush, chairman; Jack S. Caldwell, Richard M. Harris and Floyd Fleshman.

Church News—

Appomattox Seventh-day Adventist Church

Pastor D. Clark, Pastor
Saturday Sabbathville is making a full recovery" from the bloodbaths in the Congo over the past four and one-half years, according to a report by Dr. W. R. Beach, secretary of the General Conference of Seventh-day Adventists, Washington, D. C. The report summarized impressions from a nine-week tour of mission establishments in that field. In the Congo, Dr. Beach found a situation of normal mission activity at the Adventists Congo Union headquarters at Elizabethville sustained heavy losses in 1961 at the time of the United Nations intervention to restore the Katanga Province back to the Congo republic. All Adventist missionaries throughout the Congo have returned to their posts. Dr. Beach reports, mission workers have increased dramatically at the churches 11 mission posts in the Congo during the last 12 months. As an example, he stad that Bible- study classes conducted by church members have increased tenfold from 130 to over 1,300 last year.

The church has 14,000 baptized members in its Congo- Union and 20,000 Sabbath School members.

In spite of war and other difficulties the church's sales of religious books and periodicals more than tripled during the first nine months of 1964 compared with the previous year. No casualities have been reported among the Adventist workers in the Congo. Dr. Beach attributed much of this calm to the denominations firm policy of church-state separation. "The people seem to recognize we are dedicated only to a spiritual cause," Dr. Beach said. "Other groups have not been so fortunate. "He added, "Time is running out in explosive Africa. Dr. Beach concluded, "Christian leaders are more important than ever if Africans are to receive the training Africa's future requires.

Youth Speaks
by Don Williams

I was told of a minister, who said that he could walk out-of-doors and look up into a tree and preach a sermon, one hour long, on the Hand Work of God". We often don't realize the wonderful things that God does for us. It is so easy to see the things that go against us but seldom do we take notice of the things God does for us. I wonder how many people thank God each morning for giving them that day. How many thank God for the blessings they received when they retire at night. Instead we dread going to work or we hate to get up so soon. We start off with a seed of hate for our fellowman that increases as the day goes on. At night we sat down to some old hellish TV show and don't even bother to read one verse out of the Bible. No wonder we have a song entitled "Dust on the Bible". On Sunday morning everyone will tell you what God means to them. But what about the other six days of the week? What does God mean to you then?

Local Men Take Mid-West Tour

Bernard A. Slayton and Patrick Lair, of Pamplin, members of the Appomattox County Farm Bureau, are among a group of 175 leaders of county Farm Bureaus from all over Virginia who are touring the Mid-Western states. They left Virgnia on February 27 and will return on March 5.

The touring Farm Bureau members are traveling by chartered buses to Michigan, Illinois, Indiana and Tennessee, where they will visit state Farm Bureau offices and service facilities. The trip is sponsored by the Virginia Farm Bureau Federation and county Farm Bureaus. Robert B. Delano, president of the Virginia Farm Bureau Federation, leads the delegation.

Delano, in commenting on the purposes of the trip, said, "We have outstanding county Farm Bureaus in Virginia. Our aim, in making this tour, is to study ways and means of making our county organizations stronger and of more service to their family members."

"Farm Bureau is the largest general farm organization in Virginia and is organized in the major agricultural counties in the Commonwealth. It is made up of family commercial farmers. We have more than twenty thousand families who are members of our county Farm Bureaus," Delano continued. "Our trip will give us a splendid opportunity to see how other state and county Farm Bureaus operate and it should give us ideas we will be able to incorporate into our programs to make a good organization much better." Delano concluded.
